The machine was full of coal and water and was ready for the road. Several people saw the boy start, but no one was near enough to catch the engine. Master Mechanic Michael F. Brady at once began to telephone to stations along the line. Portsmouth and Peninsular were notified, and men at these points tried to board the engine as it dashed by, but its speed was too great. Mr. Brady also notified the office at Albina, and a party of men can out on the line northward to meet the wild engine.

In coming up the long grade toward Albina the steam died down a little. and swung up, but in doing so he was dragged 80 feet. He at once turned off the steam, and the engine slowed rather proud of his feat.

When the engine first dashed out of St. John's, he was frightened, and as he came through Portsmouth like a shot out of a gun he was yelling lustily for "marnma." After going several miles farther, however, he again became brave and held his position on Willie Collier and his company of the seat with composure, with his
